WORCESTER, Mass. – Quinsigamond Community College is partnering with the Worcester Regional Food Hub to bring local vendors to its campus.

The rotating vendors will be selling food during breakfast and lunch at QCC's cafeteria Monday through Friday. The college says the partnership is a win-win both for the vendors as well as students and faculty.

“It’s a great opportunity for everyone and it’s a great partnership with the food hub to help them have exposure but also to have them serve our students and staff and faculty,” said QCC president Luis Pedraja. “And so far, we love it.”

This week's offerings by vendors include a variety of pound cakes, muffins, a salad bar and chicken wings.
